

HIGH LITTLETON POOR RATE ASSESSMENTS 1755-1825

HISTORY OF POOR RATES, OVERSEERS & THEIR ACCOUNTS

Prior to the Reformation, the Church, in the form of parish clergy and monasteries etc., assumed responsibility for the care of the poor. Indeed, one third of the vicar's tithes was intended to be utilised for this purpose. When the monasteries were dissolved, the problems of relieving the poor became so acute that the clergy were directed to collect alms for poor people. An Act of 1572 created the parish offices of "Alms Collector" and "Supervisor of the Labour of Rogues and Vagabonds". A further Act of 1597 combined the two offices under the title of "Overseer of the Poor".

In the parish of High Littleton it was usual to nominate two Overseers each year, one from High Littleton and one from Hallatrow. The Overseers were nominated from a short list of the parish middle class, namely the farmers, shopkeepers, tradesmen and minor gentry, and served for one year. The office was an honorary one and in some years could be onerous. The 1601 Poor Law made Churchwardens ex-officio Overseers, which meant that the work load was normally shared between four persons. Overseers were appointed at the Annual Vestry, held around lady day, and such appointments required the subsequent approval of the Justices. The Vestry maintained a short list of suitably qualified potential Overseers and the same person was likely to be reappointed at intervals of five to ten years.

To fund their payments for the relief of the poor, the Overseers raised money by a local levy on land, called the Poor Rate. The compulsory raising of a parish rate was first laid down in the Poor Act of 1597/8 and consolidated in the 1601 Act.

From 1691, the Overseers were obliged to keep Accounts, which were subject to the scrutiny of the Vestry and "audited" by the Justices each year. One of the Overseers was appointed the executive officer, responsible for looking after the funds raised by the rates, the disbursements thereof and the keeping of the Account Book. At the beginning of the 19th century, High Littleton appointed an Assistant Overseer, who was paid a salary. He kept the accounts, appears to have done most of the work and, as his position was not subject to annual rotation, provided welcome continuity from year to year. The Overseers had limited discretion and took their instructions from the Vestry regarding anything other than routine payments.

The earliest surviving Overseers' Accounts for High Littleton date from 1755 and for many, but not all, years a list of the amounts to be collected in Poor Rates has been copied into the Account Books. The earliest Poor Rate list is also for 1755 and records the names of proprietors of land and sometimes the name of the previous proprietor of an estate, together with the amount of a Single Rate. At the beginning of each year the Overseers proposed a rate of 20, 50, 100 or whatever, times the amount of the Single Rate, which was then approved by the Vestry and afterwards allowed by the Justices. When the money ran out, a further levy would be made and it was not unusual in later years for seven or eight separate levies to be made in a single year.

In 1755 the total amount of a Single Rate for the parish of High Littleton was 17s.10¹/₄d. Rates were charged on all the land and property in the parish (including property owned by the parish itself). In addition, the Impropriators of the Tithes were charged Poor Rates (but not Church Rates) on the notional value of their tithes. Unfortunately no record can be found of how the first rate assessment for the parish was calculated, but it is likely to have been set sometime in the 17th century and followed until 1802. Prior to 1802 the High Littleton Poor Rate was assessed on the owners of land, most of whom were members of the Vestry. As payers of rates, which provided the money for Poor Relief, the Vestry obviously had a keen interest in ensuring that there were no unnecessary disbursements!

Clearly it was important that the annual list of rates showed the current owners and in this regard the lists provide a useful means of tracing changes in ownership (or later, occupiers) of property. However, sometimes a deceased owner's name might continue to be shown until his estate was wound up and the property legally passed to his heir. The manuscript lists tended to record the names of the most important landowners first, but for ease of location the transcriber has placed them in alphabetical order and also drawn attention, in italics, to obvious errors, changes and, where known, the reasons for such changes.

The detail in the early Poor Rate lists is limited and one can only identify a few specific properties or estates. However, in 1793 William SMITH mapped and surveyed the Tithing of High Littleton, which enabled every field and cottage to be identified by means of a reference number. Whilst this was not correlated to the Poor Rates, later surveys, which used the same reference numbers, were. SMITH's map was enhanced in 1799.

As time progressed, more and more anomalies arose in the rate assessments, which had remained largely unchanged for at least fifty years and possibly nearly two hundred years. It was always open for anyone, who felt that their rates were unfair, to appeal to the Quarter Sessions. In 1802 Walter BENNETT threatened just such an appeal, following which the Vestry appointed Jeremiah CRUSE, who was a partner of William SMITH, to survey and map Hallatrow, update the previous survey of High Littleton and recommend a new basis for Poor Rates. As a result, Poor Rates from 1802 were assessed on occupiers (instead of owners) of land at the rate of one penny per acre. Rates were also applied to the value of the tithes of High Littleton and Hallatrow, which on the rating lists were translated into notional acreages.

After 1802, the rate lists recorded owners and occupiers and from then on, apart from having to contend with a gap until 1811, it is possible to trace the movement of individual properties. With the switch in onus of payment, the additional number of people brought into the rating system was significant. Presumably owners adjusted rents to compensate tenants for this additional expense.

By 1823, there were similar rumblings of discontent about the unfairness of the "new" rating system and in 1825 matters were brought to a head by John BLINMAN of Hallatrow Farm, who threatened to appeal to the Quarter Sessions. Accordingly, the Vestry appointed Mr. T.O. BENNETT, Land Surveyor of Bruton, to update the 1802 survey, together with the 1799 map of High Littleton and 1802 map of Hallatrow and recommend a new basis for the Poor Rate. BENNETT valued every property in the parish and recommended a rate of 5d. in the £ on the annual value, payable by the occupiers. In accepting BENNETT's recommendations, the Vestry sensibly exempted from rates, occupiers of small cottages who were paupers, for there was little point in collecting money from them with one hand, only to pay it back with the other. Once again the new rate created an increase in the number of ratepayers. Within a few years exceptions started creeping into the new system. Some owner occupiers of small cottages, who were previously exempted, were now charged. Occupiers of beer houses were charged extra. On the other hand, poor occupiers of field gardens were exempted.

By an Act of 1772, parishes were enabled to buy or rent premises for workhouses or for housing poor families. Over the ensuing years, the High Littleton Overseers rented a number of different premises for the latter purpose, in particular near the entrance to the woods at Stephen's Hill, near the site of the Old Plough in Hart's Lane, at Cloud Hill, on Hallatrow Triangle and close to the site of the Primitive Methodist Church in the High Street.

In 1836, parochial responsibility for the poor passed to the newly formed Clutton Union, which, in 1837, built a workhouse off Eastcourt Road, Cloud Hill, to house the poor of the twenty seven parishes comprising the Union. The Union undertook the dispensing of relief to the poor, the cost of which was charged back to the respective parishes. Needless to say, with paid officials and more bureaucracy, the ratepayers of High Littleton found that they were now paying higher Poor Rates than before the Union was formed and Vestry Minutes reflect the parishioners' discontent. A new survey of High Littleton and Hallatrow was carried out in 1838 by Charles WAINWRIGHT, surveyor of Shepton Mallet, but unfortunately no record survives of WAINWRIGHT's survey or his recommended rate.

The main duties of the Overseers were taken over by the Union Relieving Officers and thereafter their role became less important, although Overseers were still elected annually by the Vestry until 1894, when the Vestry was superseded by the Parish Council. By an Act of 1865 Clutton Union raised a Rate and from then onwards the member parishes ceased setting their own rates.

The surveys of 1802 and 1825, undertaken in connection with the Poor Rate are of inestimable value in providing a comprehensive snapshot of the parish. It should however be noted that, not until the parish was surveyed in 1838/9 for the Tithe Commissioners, was any attempt made to check or amend the measures taken for the initial surveys of High Littleton in 1793 and Hallatrow in 1802. At the end of this booklet a table has been provided to compare the two parish surveys with the tithe survey. Not only does this reconcile the two series of map reference numbers but it also highlights the merging of small fields into larger ones and the erection of new houses on previously virgin land.

HIGH LITTLETON POOR RATE ASSESSMENTS 1755-1825

The earliest surviving list of Poor Rates is for 1755. The basis for the individual assessments is not known, but is likely to have been established in the previous century and been followed annually thereafter.

Until 1802, the Poor Rates appear to have been levied on the proprietors of land and houses and the impropriators of the tithes of High Littleton and Hallatrow. With the exception of the amounts attributed to the tithes, the same figures were used for Church Rate purposes.

The annual Poor Rate assessments, where they exist, have been extracted from the Overseers' Account Books and the names of proprietors placed in alphabetical order. Changes from year to year and reasons, where obvious, have been shown in italics, together with any other extra information added by the transcriber.

Apart from a detailed copy of the 1802 assessment found amongst records preserved by Mr T.O. BENNETT, no further lists of Poor Rates appear in the Overseers' Account Books until 1811.

By the turn of the century many circumstances had changed, not all of which had been reflected in the Rates assessments and there were quite a few anomalies, which resulted in some proprietors paying less than they should, to the detriment of the others who were left to bear more than their fair proportion. Inevitably matters were brought to a head, a new Survey was commissioned in 1802 to cover both High Littleton and Hallatrow and this resulted in a new basis of assessment.

The following draft of the Poor Rate Assessment for 1802 was copied by Mr. T.O. BENNETT in July 1825, when the latter was commissioned to survey the Parish, in order that a more equitable assessment of the Poor Rate could be made. The 1802 assessment was the first to be made on the basis of 1d. per acre and the detailed schedules were obviously derived from updating the High Littleton survey of 1793 (by William SMITH) and the Hallatrow survey of 1802 (by Jeremiah CRUSE).

Small cottages omitted to be rated

It was the policy not to assess small cottages to Poor Rates. The following cottages etc. have been listed by the transcriber in order to account for all the properties in the parish. Details have been taken from the 1793 survey and verified with the 1804 survey of BURDETT's property.
